

WE NOMINATE

John Dunn Davies, the energetic, imaginative and independent editor of the Princeton Alumni Weekly, who has contributed an intriguing chapter to the history of Town and Gown alike with his about-to-be-published "The Legend of Hobey Baker," a thoughtfully done biography of the "athletic immortal" memorialized by the University's Hobart Baker Rink. Featured in the current issue of "Esquire" Magazine, this welcome addition to Princetoniana is the first of two histories the 48-year old Davies will publish this year, for his "Princeton University in the 20th Century," a mammoth work running to 100's of pages, is now scheduled for distribution early in the winter ahead.

"The Baker Legend" is a beautifully done 114-page volume, chronicling a basically "thin story," which has been skillfully patched together by its author's exhausting and exhaustive researches. Davies wrung dry the University's Archives, checked and re-checked countless journalistic "analyses" of Baker's prowess both within and beyond sports arenas, and probed the recollections of over 100 friends, acquaintances, observers, team-mates and opponents. There are, in Davies' words, "no techniques of 'fictional biography,' no contrived incidents or invented conversations; every remark, every vignette was told to me by an observer."

This study of Baker, that is placed in proper perspective in a brilliant introduction by scholar-critic Arthur Mizener, is strongly reminiscent of Davies' approach to the editorship of "The Alumni Weekly," the only college publication of its kind in the country. Ever since accepting the post in 1955, he has sought to produce a polished, highly readable magazine dedicated to interpreting the University to the "Weekly's" some 40,000 readers. And, on balance, he has succeeded admirably — while periodically raising the hackles of members of the University Administration which has no control over editorial policies and, from week to week, waits to read "what Davies has to say."

Born in Chicago on St. Patrick's Day, and reared in Detroit with an "assist" from the Hotchkiss School (Lakeville, Conn.), Davies whirled through Princeton with the Class of 1941, graduating with highest honors in Art and Archaeology. A nerve-racking year as a junior airport manager with Pan-American Airways on the Amazon River was followed by graduate study at Harvard in the fine arts. When the Navy relaxed its stringent restrictions on eyesight in 1943, the bespectacled Davies qualified for overseas duty and as a member of an Engineer Regiment attached to the Fourth Marine Division "saw a heck of a lot of the war" in the Pacific.

After World War II, in preparing for college teaching, Davies switched from the fine arts to history and from Harvard to Yale, shifts "making me one of the few Harvard-Yale-Princeton types around." Two years of teaching at the University of Minnesota and four at Smith College preceded his return to Princeton 11 years ago to labor over articles and "make-up" rather than scholarly lectures. Stirring memories of his early aspirations to become a museum curator, Davies shares with his wife, a tireless and effective worker in a variety of community service enterprises, an absorbing interest in constantly adding to the splendid collection of abstract sculpture and painting in their Heather Lane home.

For striving to raise ever higher the standards of "Princeton journalism;" for focusing attention on what he has termed "the real news about Princeton, the relations of the Town to the University, of the faculty family to the commuters, and the Town's huge Potential;" for his solid achievements as editor and writer, he is our nominee as

NEW YEAR BEGINS

Goal: The Best. "Our long-range goal is to live up to the promise of merger: to make our system equal to the best in the country. And we have this potential."

As the new Princeton Regional School District begins its first year with 5,988 pupils, Dr. Harvey D. Rothberg, president of the first Regional Board, expressed other optimism about the future.

"We can see right now the first major, tangible benefit of merger," Dr. Rothberg continued. He referred to the first additional classrooms gained in the high school building when, in a game of musical chairs, all school board administrative personnel moved out of the high school and into the Princeton Township Slocum Brook Building on Stockton Street, and the guidance counselors moved into the board offices, thereby releasing guidance officers for class-rooms. (They will be used as study-halls.)

The high school will have about 1850 pupils this fall. But it will not have the staggered session previously announced by principal Kenneth Michael, Dr. Rothberg said. The two rooms in the present high school building, plus the four rooms in new C.I.T. units, he erected outside near the present units, will mean that the high school has managed to put off staggered sessions for the time being.

Our Main Problem. But overcrowding at the high school is still the Board's chief problem. Dr. Rothberg, quoting Superintendent John J. McKenna, said that overcrowding means "we have Operation Shoehorn, instead of Operation Lighthouse." "And the longer our sending districts remain with us," Dr. Rothberg warned, "the more likely it is that we will not only staggered sessions, but double sessions."

Montgomery Township presents quite probably the most existing situation to the Board. Montgomery's contract has ex-

Back-to-School, Issue Has Many Features

TOWN TOPICS' annual Back-to-School issue, running to 60 pages, contains numerous stories, features and pictures of unusual interest. Among them:

• A four-page section on the new John Witherspoon School, recording completion of "a five-year dream," defining the historical status of the town for whom it was named and introducing the new principal (pages 37-40).

• An interview with Douglas O. McClure, new headmaster of the Princeton Day School (page 5).

• A report on an intriguing new method of teaching the very young to read, now in practice at Miss Mary's School (page 7).

• The changing scene: "What Does Merger Mean for My Child?" (page 16).

• Shopping tips for those bound back to school and colleges—It's New to Us (page 31).

• Home-town story: A Princeton-born girl, educated here from kindergarten through high school, now to join the faculty in the Princeton Regional School System (page 10).

Also in this issue: Stories on the timetable for the Jackson Street realignment; plans for a new career-counseling program to be sponsored by several units of the Presbyterian church; early plans and opening dates for all schools and colleges in the Princeton area; the fifth annual Giants-Eagles football game and an analysis of the strength and weakness of Princeton's 1966 football opponents; Composite Index on page 2.

pared, but the township wants to add as much as we had to remain at the high school level," Dr. Rothberg said with its 300-plus pupils and it took its case to the State Commissioner of Education.

At one time, it was said that a decision would be forthcoming by September 10, but Dr. Rothberg said no one really knows when a decision will be announced, or even reached. Rocky Hill is also in the news. As of June, there were 185 Rocky Hill boys and girls coming to Princeton to school, enrolled as Borough students. Of these, 32 were in the high school. There will be more in September. And more than the 133 elementary pupils.

"Here is another advantage of merger," Dr. Rothberg observed. "John Witherspoon is already filled with Borough and Rocky Hill youngsters. Merger makes it possible to transfer Rocky Hill kindergartners to Community Park. Otherwise, we'd have kindergartens filled beyond the legal limit."

"Regionalization has never been seriously discussed with Rocky Hill," Dr. Rothberg stated. "Rocky Hill recognizes the fact that Princeton cannot accommodate them much longer. Their high school contract runs to 1968, their elementary contract is renewed every year. Merger with Montgomery seems the most logical move for them."

What to Do With PHS. Returning to the high school, Dr. Rothberg said the board was much concerned about the physical plant. What about the age of the building? Should it be converted to a junior high? What about the library, the vocational education facilities? Should more C.I.T. units be leased?

Dr. Rothberg said the board would probably ask the state for a professional consultant who would, without charge, explore the situation and advise the board. "Long-range planning is essential," Dr. Rothberg emphasized. "We are to avoid temporary expedients. Should we, for example, make long-range plans which might include a major addition to the high school building? All this is part of a comprehensive review of the entire system which the Board will make this year."

"The role of the public high school is to prepare students for work—and for the rest of their lives. And for the rest of their lives, training shouldn't be specific," Dr. Rothberg stated.

Then he spoke of a national trend toward true vocational education at the post-high-school level, and added that Princeton High's courses are actually "pre-vocational."

At the high school, about 40 boys are expected to enroll this fall in a new electronics course to be taught by Frank Franciscus. A projected course in power mechanics had to be dropped because the teacher took another job elsewhere. It is hoped that Mr. Franciscus will start the work-study program already in existence, and that power mechanics can begin in '67.

background for employment, but they are transmitting an understanding of the heritage and culture of mankind and the complex interrelationships of human beings. We must teach students how to think, so that the next generation can find valid answers for the problems of the future.

ENROLLMENT STATISTICS

In Rocky Hill, Rocky Hill, a sending district of the new Princeton Regional School System, will have a maximum enrollment increase of only one percent per year for the next ten years, according to Kenneth B. Spear, president of the Rocky Hill Board of Education.

This finding was revealed in a report to Dr. Harvey Bohler, president of the Princeton Regional School Board. The report on projected enrollment from Rocky Hill also stated that the average number of pupils in each grade is expected to remain steady at 14 or 15.

The report accompanied an announcement by Charles C. Peterson, vice-president of the Rocky Hill Board of Education, that children entering kindergarten from Rocky Hill will attend Community Park School rather than the new John Witherspoon School. Bus routes will be adjusted to accommodate the change.

The figures on present and future enrollment were reached after a study of children in Rocky Hill, a sending district of Princeton Borough for 65 years. It showed that there are now 194 Rocky Hill students in the Princeton system, and projected the number would reach 200 by 1968 but then drop to 188 by 1970.

Concern has been expressed over the community's rapid growth rate and accompanying increase in school enrollment. From 1961 to 1965 enrollment more than doubled.

The reason for the increase was explained by the construction of a 74-home development during that period. Besides, there are only 25 residential acres remaining in Rocky Hill. It is estimated that no more than 15 homes will be built in the future.

MORE TITLE I?

Thompson Proposes, an extension of the Title I provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act has been proposed by the House Committee on Education and Labor, one of whose members is Frank Thompson, Jr., Representative in Congress from this area.

Under the Committee's proposals, New Jersey's allocation would increase by about $11 million in 1967 and another $22 million in 1968.

The most significant change, according to Rep. Thompson, would mean the bringing in of more children from low-income families who would be authorized the use of Title I funds for children in either public or private homes for orphans, neglected children or delinquents.

"Some months ago," said Rep. Thompson, "William J. Nunn, Superintendent of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, wrote me asking if it would be possible under the language of the original Act to have the children of St. Michael's Home routed to eligible for assistance funds under Title I. Re-rettfully, I had to advise him that the present language makes no provision for such children. If the Congress approves our recommendation as I trust it will, money will be available to the Superintendent Nunn to help provide an educational program for the 78 youngsters at St. Michael's."

"In this same vein, our Committee has added language that will permit the Commissioner of Education to provide funds for special education programs for the children of migrant workers. We realize full well the difficulties involved because of the relatively brief time these youngsters are within a community. However, we are counting on the States to cooperate by devising some imaginative programs to help these children who need it so badly."

Do You Speak Thai?

... Dick and homesick, a young student from Thailand lies in Princeton Hospital.

He came to this country as an exchange student, ready to enter Hightstown High School this fall. Although he has student status, he has very little command of English and when he became ill, he found himself in a strange hospital with people who didn't seem to speak his language at all.

Princeton Hospital would like to find someone who speaks Thai, or at least can understand it, someone who would be willing to visit the young man — he is 17 — and cheer him up while he is getting well. It is possible that he understands a little French.

Anyone with the linguistic qualifications should call Donald Evans at the hospital, 921-7700.

TOPICS Of The Town

READY FOR SEPT. 7?

School Board Meets. Princeton's public schools will open on Wednesday, September 7, with 5,069 pupils and 315 teachers, including an extra elementary teacher, hired, in the words of Superintendent John J. McKenna, to stand by in case of population explosion. Dr. McKenna says she will substitute here and there until a full-time vacancy occurs, and he expects, philosophically, that one will probably occur before the end of the first semester.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Regional School Board, president Harvey Rothberg thanked the administrative staff for the work they had done during the summer preparing the new district for its first full academic year.

He announced formally that the high school will not require staggered sessions this year (see page one), and repeated his warning that double sessions may well come, perhaps in 1982-83, unless sending districts, Montgomery in particular, leave the ship.

Cites Sending Responsibility

"It is clearly the responsibility of the Montgomery Board to make provision for their own children," he stated. He said that the Regional Board plans more meetings with the Rocky Hill Board because "re-examination of the Rocky Hill situation is mandatory."

Of the 1,650 students expected at Princeton High School on September 7, 750 are from sending districts, a bout 300 of those from Montgomery, 61 from Rocky Hill.

Kenneth Michael, principal of the high school, told the Board that by reducing class periods from 50 to 48 minutes and making the ninth or "activities" period (from 2:42 to 3:30 p.m.) a full academic period for all ninth graders, he had picked up the equivalent of 15 extra classrooms. He has also scheduled science labs for the ninth period. Students in grades 10, 11 and 12 will continue to have optional classes during ninth period unless they have a lab.

Mr. Michael said the new C.I.T. classrooms, four in two units, will probably not arrive until November. Until they are in use, the high school library, the ex-senior lunchroom and sub-standard rooms will be used for class space.

The two new C.I.T. buildings will be set up between the back parking lot and the tennis courts.

No New Lab. Plans for con-

A NEW ALPHABET, TO START WITH: As any four-year-old at Miss Mason's School can tell you, the sentence above is "John said: I like hats" in fact anyone glancing at the sentence can probably read it immediately, and this close bond relationship between it and spelling and the new "Initial Teaching Alphabet" helps to explain how children can transfer so easily from the teaching alphabet to the standard one. More about "I.T.A." in "Topics of the Town."

verting second floor high school space into a biology lab went down the drain because bids were too high. $200,000, opposed to the budgeted $150,000. Besides, no general contractor submitted a bid, and the Board would have had to be its own general contractor.

Reluctantly, the Board formally rejected the bids (the state had delayed its approval anyhow, thereby making the time too short) and Dr. Rothberg suggested that it may be better to start again and form an overall comprehensive plan.

Meanwhile, across Walnut Lane, all but $3,891 of the $2,600,000 committed for John Witherspoon, has been spent. Cafeteria furniture will be shipped from Indiana on August 20, playground equipment is due in September, library furniture at Christmas-time old cafeteria chairs and tables will substitute.

Lab, home ec. and industrial arts equipment is all in and ready to go.

Up! Nine boys and girls in the 10th and 11th grades took part this summer in the Upward Bound program at Rutgers financed through the Office of Economic Opportunity. No student received less than a B. Dr. McKenna reported: In fact, of the 22 grades earned 15 were A's. Subjects offered were English, elementary German, Italian and Spanish, chemistry, typing, some economics, sociology, algebra, trigonometry. Each course lasted six weeks, and students lived on campus. Only youngsters who were not successful high school students were considered, Mr. Michael said.

The Board agreed to put a tentative toe into the water at the new Community Gardens swimming pool, and gave its approval to a trial program for teaching swimming skills to elementary school children. The program will start in

READY, ON JACKSON?
Bids to be received. The first section of re-aligned Jackson Street from Witherspoon to John may well be completed by November 1, and the final section by December 1. If the weather cooperates, this could mean fulfillment of the "bare, snow-fall" prediction of Borough Councilman Ellwood Godfrey toward the completion of Jackson.

Bids for construction will be opened in Borough Hall on Tuesday, September 6, along with bids for demolishing the Mitchell house on Chambers Street and installing a traffic light at Witherspoon and Wiggins.

Bids for construction of Jackson Two will be advertised around September 20. Mr. Cawley says, "The Borough doesn't want to build the whole re-alignment all at once because such a schedule would disrupt all of Palmer Square, fine parking facilities. In the one-block time plan, only part of the parking will be disrupted at a time."

graduate of Hun's class of 1952, who will teach history. Mr. Byer, a 1956 graduate of Marist College, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. M. Yale Byer of Trenton. He and his wife plan to live on the Hun School campus.

Dr. Paul R. Chesebro, headmaster of the Hun School, has also announced the appointment of the Reverend David Crawford of the Princeton Theological Seminary to the Hun School faculty. He will serve as chaplain.

New courses added to the curriculum at Hun include Russian history, taught by Robert H. Newson, human anatomy and physiology, taught by Gerald DeKleban and advanced biology, taught by Spottford Woodruff.

like PDS, he said. "The long-range goals are very similar. They are interested in being something more than just an other independent school. The school has demonstrated what bright students can do when academic excellence is expected of them."

Mr. McClure, a blue-eyed man of average height, has a warm way of speaking about students. He looks forward to beginning in September the intriguing process of getting acquainted with all 670 or 680. He and his family will add a great deal of liveliness. His wife Kay, who held cooking classes for Pomfret boys, will be a very real part of the school. Young Kathy will enter the 8th grade and Anne "Annie" the 3rd grade, with small Douglas on the sidelines.

Navy Veteran. A veteran of three years in the Navy, serving abroad a troop carrier for 1 1/2 years in Korea and Japanese waters, and for almost two years on the submarine "Piper" in the Atlantic, Mr. McClure says happily, "I have discovered Lake Carnegie."

And one of the things I do very enthusiastically and badly is sing — I understand there's at least one choral group that I can join. My wife sings less enthusiastically, but very well. . . . The main thing, though, is that I want to spend as much time as I can getting to know the students."

HEADMASTER SIGNS IN
At Princeton Day School. Last year was a transition year for the new $4 million Princeton Day School. A faculty operating committee headed by Herbert McAnany guided the merged interests of Miss Fine's and Princeton Country Day Schools.

This September PDS welcomes its new headmaster, Douglas O. McClure, historian, educator and submarine officer. Vacationing now in Maine, the McClure family settled into 181-year-old Colross on the school grounds early in July.

Mr. McClure is a graduate of Hotchkiss, Yale University, Class of 1951 with a master's degree from the University of Connecticut. He has behind him eight years at the Pomfret School, where he served as head of the history department, as director of the international affairs program, and for three years, as director of admissions. He comes to Princeton after three years as headmaster of Rockland County (N.Y.) Country Day School.

Motivation. Looking back upon his own schooling, one July day as he sat in his office at PDS, he said thoughtfully: "There were two things that meant the most to me and influenced my thinking about education in general on the elementary and secondary level."

"One, at an early age, I was brought to the point where I became excited about history. It became as close to a passion with me as anything."

"I would like to see every student become academically excited. I don't care whether the area is art, music, history, or science or what ever. The excitement that comes with learning in depth — this is to Day School is in many ways."

me the goal for any student.

"Two, as a person who comes from a New England boarding school background, I did have a chance to participate in athletics at the varsity level. Though I'm not particularly talented, I did make the varsity swimming teams in school and college."

"That did a great deal as far as helping me discipline myself in an area where I wasn't conscious of it. It was part of a game. I would encourage any boy to take part in activities this way."

"I think that if you can help give intellectual excitement in the classrooms with athletics outside, you are going to have a student become a more thoroughly disciplined student, one who will use the talents he has."

Dramatics Proved Helpful. A former member of a Hotchkiss drama group, he observes, "Participation in drama in any form probably does more to help a person speak effectively than almost any other program. I've not known a boy who is at a loss for words in public who was not involved in drama in some way."

"All of the creative arts are very important. This is a very necessary part of school. I don't think it should be considered extra curricular at all."

ed stolen this month from the second floor of Building E of the Institute for Advanced Study by Minot C. Morgan, general manager. Police said there were no signs of any forced entry.

Detective Fred Porter of the Township Police is investigating the entry Monday night of the Van Mordring Company, 120 Alexander Street. A casement window on the first floor of the northeast corner of the building was broken to gain entry.

Desk drawers in three offices on the first floor and two on the second were rifled. A metal filing cabinet in the second floor was also forced open and searched. Detective Porter said that the intruders were evidently looking for money but apparently were unsuccessful. "As far as we have been able to determine nothing was taken," He added that they were very alert in their search.

When Dr. Bertrand E. Benson, Journey's End Lane, went away for the weekend, he parked his 1960 Volkswagen near the railway station at University Place.

When he returned Sunday morning his car had been stolen. More fortunate was Harry J. Christian, 88 Birch Avenue, who told police he had parked his car in front of 302 John Street Friday night and at 1:30 in the morning noticed it was missing. After searching the immediate area, he found it around the corner in the Community Park lot.

He told police that the right vent window had been forced from information given them and the ignition switch broken by Mr. Chiarello, the latter arrived at his office around 7:10, whereupon he was attacked by two men. Mr. Chiarello described one as white, heavy set, between 22-25, and around 5-7; the other as a Negro 6-0, about 35 and wearing a white shirt and white sneakers.

He told police he fought with them and that one cut him with a knife. Mr. Chiarello was later taken to Princeton Hospital and treated for scratches of the face and hand. Chief McCrohan reported that his shirt and coat had been cut but that there were no wounds or cuts on his body.

The victim also reported that the pair took his gold watch and $150 in cash. Chief McCrohan added that a later check with Mr. Chiarello revealed that possibly as much as $700 was taken from a drawer of his desk.

Currently, fire broke out, not one but several blazes in different locations in the office, police said. At 7:37 a telephone operator called the police. Two minutes later the police sounded a general alarm. Fire damage was reported to be small by Chief McCrohan, who estimated the total at approximately $700.

Sgt. Arthur Gallant and Ptl. Arthur Jackson are continuing the investigation. At his press conference Tuesday, Chief McCrohan said that Mr. Chiarello was scheduled to be interviewed again by the police that afternoon.

John F. Dempster, County fire marshal, is also aiding in the investigation. He reported there were three fires—one in the corner of the main room, a second in a closet and a third in another room in a box of tissues.

Mr. Dempster added that firemen told him the closet door was closed when they entered. He, in turn, said there that there was no sign of heat outside the closet door. Presently, he is waiting upon a report of his findings from the Underwriters.

In December, 1964, Mr. Chiarello's office was extensively damaged by a fire at approximately the same time in the morning. His office is housed

FOUR-YEAR-OLDS READ New Alphabet Opens Door
Three years ago this fall, Mary Mason introduced "i.i.a." — the Initial Teaching Alphabet — to four-year-olds at Miss Mason's School.

This fall, those first four-year-olds will enter second grade and Miss Mason says, "Our best readers are the ones who started with i.i.a. For as i.i.a. works. Our children are reading substantially earlier and better than they did with standard orthography. All our kindergarten children are well into reading. . . ."

The Initial Teaching Alphabet, devised by Sir James Pitman, grandson of the inventor of Pitman shorthand, consists of 44 letters and symbols covering every sound in the English language. Of the 44, 17 can be easily recognized as combinations of standard letters. Only three are unusual. The alphabet is written in lower case only, and is therefore correctly referred to as "i.i.a."

It is not spelling reform, it does not shunt children off into a siding, away from the main line of readers. As its name indicates, it is an initial teaching alphabet only. At Miss Mason's, where four-year-olds learn i.i.a., five-year-olds in kindergarten have slipped easily into the standard alphabet by the time school ends in the spring.

Miss Mason's chief assistant in the i.i.a. is Mrs. Jackson Martindell. She was the first i.i.a. teacher at the school and is now in charge of all i.i.a. work.

Miss Mason herself became acquainted with Sir James Pitman after she heard him address a group of educators, and the Englishman was so impressed with her qualifications that he invited her to tour his schools in Wales, observing with him the progress of the i.i.a. That was in the summer of 1963. That fall, the i.i.a. began at Miss Mason's.

No "Black" "With i.i.a., no child has that hopeless feeling about reading," Miss Mason says, with emphasis. "The fast child is freed to go as fast as he likes, the slower child has a sound platform from which to advance."

So far as anyone knows, Miss Mason's is the only school of any size to teach reading to four-year-olds, using i.i.a. At her school, it goes like this: All four-year-olds (a maxi-sum of 36 this fall are presented with I.T.A. during their 30-minute reading period, for form or listening to Mrs. Martindell read, catching her voice as she carefully emphasizes the beginning sounds of each word.

A child as young as four needs help in understanding concepts like over-under, large-small and, most importantly, alike-different. These are explored through games. "Bring me something LIKE doll," the teacher will say.

This year, there will be something new: pre-reading aural phonics for three-year-olds, in which babies like "different-alike" are extended aurally. An off-beat drum is heard. Is it "alike" or "different," compared to an off-stage bell?

"I Like Ice-Cream." Constant stress on beginning sounds will soon bear results, and the four-year-old will suddenly realize "that's what the 'b' sounds like." Gradually, the teacher builds up a small vocabulary of eight words in I.T.A., carefully choosing them for meaningful qualities: "I like ice-cream... mother... my house..."

Still using the I.T.A. symbols, the teachers then combine phonics and look-see to teach more words. When the four-year-olds have a vocabulary of 20 or 30 words, she gives them a copybook and writing begins.

Taking a heavy crayon she writes slowly on a big tablet, "slowly," so the children can see the sound coming from the crayon.

Here's a pencil — let it tell me a story," the teacher suggests. An isolated letter or symbol may appear, after many squiggles. Four-year-olds don't go very far in writing, but next year, when they're 5 and in kindergarten.

The kindergarteners just write on and on. Mrs. Martin, to exchange books with her doll marvells. "They are so fresh and creative — they don't have to stop and think how to spell, they aren't afraid of making a spelling mistake, and they have the most fantastic imaginations!"

But then... Parents, laymen and outsiders generally always say of the I.T.A., "Yes, but..." meaning, how do you

KENNETH E. MICHAEL, whose twinkling blue eyes and slow smile have helped work out many a school snarl, begins his fifth year as principal of Princeton High Schools in September. Typical of his way with the students, "He told me that we could have a talk about using the cafeteria," a 15-year-old boy said. "If I would get my hair cut, I'm gonna get it cut!"

switch a child from those 44 symbols to the alphabet he'll have to use for the rest of his life.

It doesn't seem to be a problem. Miss Mason says some four-year-olds make the transition by late spring. More than half the class does so during kindergarten, some around March. The standard alphabet is all around them — in supermarkets, on TV, in home magazines. By late kindergarten winter, when formal teaching of the standard letters begins, the youngsters accept it easily.

Miss Mason tells about over-hearing a five-year-old and his friend in the school pantry. The child saw a tray labeled for use by the kindergarten and a teacher's thermos with her name on it. He read off each label, both in standard alphabet, of course, and then he exclaimed to his friend, "Her, I didn't know we could read."

She tells of another child who was reading aloud to her from an I.T.A. book when she was in England. She asked him to exchange books with her, handing him precisely the same book, printed in the standard alphabet. He went right on reading. When she asked him, "What's the difference between the two books?" he didn't know what she meant.

To the question, "Why start with the I.T.A. at all, if the but..." meaning, how do you

Library Discontinues "Young Adult" Section

"These so-called 'young adult' books just don't move," explained Princeton's public librarian, Robert Staples, this week, "so we're discontinuing our Young Adult section. Youngsters in Princeton read the adult books."

Boys and girls who have outgrown the Children's Department and are venturing into the adult stacks will find book spines labeled with a special symbol indicating that the book is one a "young adult" might enjoy very much.

This summer has been the busiest one ever in the Children's Department, Mr. Staples said, with circulations just under 9,000 in both June and July.

"The children read everything from fairy tales to 'how to build a sailboat,'" he said. " Tolkien's book, 'The Hobbit' and 'The Ring' were just as popular as they were last year, both for children and young adults."

Mr. Staples reported a sharp increase in inquiries about college: "How to choose a college," "How to prepare for college," "How to study in college," and consistent questions about college reading lists. The library has such a list, published by the Young Adult Services Division of the American Library Association.

To his considerable astonishment, Mr. Staples found youngsters reading "Vanity" this summer, and "Pride and Prejudice." And, equally astonishing, Bernard Malamud and Alabert Camus.

A fascination with World War II kept the library humming in June, July, and August. "They read 'Hiroshima' and books like 'The Last Battle,'" Mr. Staples, the librarian mused, "after reading books like these they'll be more tolerant of us crazy adults!"

Mr. Thompson, 48, is a candidate for re-election to his seventh term. He said that results of the mailing will be made public when the questionnaires have been tabulated.

FIRM IS ACQUIRED
By Opinion Research, Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton has acquired the E. L. Reilly Co., Inc. of New York, a consumer and marketing research firm specializing in concept and product testing of children 4 to 12. ORC vice-president and chief psychologist Herbert F. Abelson has been named chairman of the board of directors of the new subsidiary.

A teacher for 12 years and the father of seven, Mr. Reilly joined Trendex, Inc. in the late 1950s, where he was a vice-president. In 1961 he started his own market research firm. By the end of 1962, Mr. Reilly was concentrating his efforts on the younger child.

At its East 56th Street headquarters in New York, the Reilly Company maintains a modern test kitchen and a group interview laboratory.

 Windsor Democratic Club —
It's off. The Princeton agency said that Mr. Wilentz's office gave no explanation for his refusal to debate Mr. Frost here.
Both men are candidates in the Democratic primary for U.S. Senator. A major point in the debate would have been the stand taken by each on the issue of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

CYCLE RAMS CAR

On Nassau Street, "You meet the nicest people on a Honda," says the slogan for Honda motorcycles. The meeting between Honda rider Jesse M. Shipiro, 36, Providence Line Road, and Abb L. Scarbrough, 45 65 Philip Drive, last week was an abrupt one.

Mr. Shipiro ran into the side of the Scarbrough car as it was turning right into the driveway of Craft Cleaners, 227 Nassau Street. He was taken to Princeton Hospital and treated for contusions of the left side and wrist.

The investigating officer, Thomas Mical said in his report that Mr. Shipiro was following too closely. He charged him with careless driving.

YOUTH LOSES LICENSE

For Speeding, Barry B. Novakus 17, 91 Columbia Avenue, Hopewell, was fined $20 Monday by Borough magistrate Theodore T. Tams, Jr., and had his license revoked for 10 days for speeding.

Another speeder, John M. Godfrey, 21, 24 Dickinson Street, was fined $20. The decision whether or not to revoke his license was left to the discretion of the Motor Vehicle Department.

In other cases, James Timmerman, 25, 196 Elm Road, paid $15 for having no muffler on his motorcycle. Standing in the roadway cost James E. Green, Jr., 18, 11 Race Street, $10.

Fined for exceeding the state's point limit were Murray W. Stewart, 19, 216 Ingle-side Avenue, Pennington, 180 days, and Elaine A. Laskewitz 21, Hillsborough Road, Belle Mead, 35 days.

Oscar Sussman, 49, Route 206, surrendered his license for one month for speeding. He was convicted in Connecticut under a reciprocity agreement.

IN YOUR OPINION...

Thompson Plans Mailing, Representative Frank Thompson Jr. has announced that he will send more than 100,000 legislative questionnaires to residents of the Fourth Congressional District or to every household in Mercer, Hunterdon, Warren and Sussex Counties. As a result of the Congressional Redistricting Act of 1960, these counties were grouped to form a new district embracing upper Delaware Valley.

In announcing the mailing, Mr. Thompson said, "It is vitally important to me as representative of this new District to learn the views of the people on the important issues facing the Congress. . . . The questionnaire will cover the United States' policy in Viet Nam, Federal aid to education, air and water pollution, transportation and highway safety.

together in the four counties of the new district, Mercer, Huntenston, Warren and Sussex. Senator Case commented after the meeting, "I welcome the candidacy of Ralph Chandler as representing the type of young, capable leadership bred in the U.S. Congress."
Mr. Chandler's broad background and his knowledge of state and national problems will make him an effective spokesman for the Republican Party, and more importantly,
for the people of the new

Mr. Chandler, a lecturer at the Republican primary on September 13. Senator Case

Congressional seat.

Where the large majority of mutual funds decreased in value during the first six months of 1968, the Knickerbocker Fund, managed by Karl D. Pettit & Co. showed a size-fourth highest in the country for the period. The percentage

adjusting for capital-gains dis-

As the overall mutual fund trend was negative, so it was with stocks. For example, the six-month decline in the Dow-

The 230SL is decidedly not a family car.

A 4-speed, fully synchronized transmission with floor shift is standard equipment. In its place you can specify a 4-speed auto.

Even people who hate automatics relate with this one; it can be shifted like a manual gearbox, there is no soggy lag in acceleration

The completed 230SL, then zips from the factory to the test track for a stroke performance check. If it's good enough for the inspector, it's good enough to sell.

Handling for experts

Only a skilled professional driver could take the 230SL up to its top holding limits.

"The car's cornering power is so high that one simply goes roaring into the turn, chooses his line, steers, and opens the throttle to taste. The result is a smoothly negotiated corner that will make your passenger think you're a virtuoso, and drivers of other cars visit that they had taken the bus."

Car and Driver. Some clues to the 230SL's handling mastery: it stands a mere 4 feet, 4 inches high - yet measures nearly 6 feet wide. And its track is so broad that those chubby 14-inch tires seem to bulge out from the body sides.

NOTE: These tires are a breakthrough in themselves. They were designed to suit the car - using advanced radial ply construction. Their tread design and tenacity help explain why this car literally sticks to the road.

Because of their decisive role in the 230SL's handling, Mercedes-Benz refuses to mount anything less.

You ride on a patented Mercedes-Benz fully independent suspension, with single-joint low-pivot rear swing axle. A few years ago, this same design carried the Mercedes-Benz 300SLR sports-racing car to a world championship.

Big 8.5-inch front disc brakes snub you down to a halt without fade or swerve. The 230SL holds both Road & Track magazine's record for fast stopping times.

Einsteintor

"The detachable hardtop is so beautifully engineered that it doesn't look as though it should come off at all," comments Autocar magazine. Note the concave roof of this hardtop. An ingeniously simple means of expanding means of expanding visibility, as in turning up the trim of a sun-berro.

In addition to the 230SL's tangible assets, many owners enjoy the simple fact that it is a Mercedes-Benz.

NEW PHS PROGRAM
OUT TO BIG STAIR, Hiding behind the dull words "distributive education" is one of the most exciting and promising projects Princeton High School has ever tackled.
"We're hoping to get in this program," says Mrs. Barbara Silverstein, the energetic, new director, "the student who is not motivated academically, but who would be just great in business. There are students in the PHS commercial program who have no facility in typing — but maybe they have a facility in business. We are going to find out."

Alert and boucy, Mrs. Silverstein has been talking with merchants all over town during the summer months, signing up assistance to the program. "We're looking for careers," she says, "not jobs in companies who want a student to stock the shelves. Each job is a training station, blended in with classroom at school."

Signed In. Equally enthusiastic is John Sheridan, Bamberger's personnel manager, one of the first to agree to work with the program. He has taken part in distributive education projects at Bamberger's, Cherry Hill and Newark stores.

"Out of 64 in the Newark group when I was there," he reports, "three were employed full time after graduation. The third went on to college. They stock the shelves. Each job is a training station, blended in with classroom at school."

The flying start PHS intends to give the students will center in 1966-67 on nine members of the senior class, with juniors in training for their senior job experience. The core of the pilot group has been recruited by Principal Kenneth Michael. A few more will sign up this fall, and next spring, Mrs. Silverstein will interview the prospective enrollees herself. She belongs to the job a variety of useful training. A native of Chicago, raised in Florida, she is a graduate of Florida

NO, IT'S NO MIRAGE: It's the Community Park pool filled with water. Unfortunately, Recreation Director Donald Barr reports that, knowing what has to be done yet, it will be after Labor Day when anyone gets a chance to dive in. At the moment, the water is murky and stinky. But when the filtration system swings into operation, Assistant Director Edward Beachen promises it will be the bluest of blue. Also filled and waiting are the training pool and the diving pool. (Staff Photo)

Need a House?

A handsome nine-bedroom house on handsome country land will be auctioned in Borough Hall on Thursday, September 29. "Scott House," on property owned by the Joint Sewer Operating Committee, has 200 feet of frontage on Herndon Road and a 2.4 acre plot.

Minimum bid is $55,000. The house is being sold as a single-family dwelling, in accordance with the Township zoning regulations for that part of the Township. Anyone who wants to convert the house to something more than a single-family house would have to obtain a variance from the Township Zoning board.

State College with a master's degree in business education from Rider College. She has worked as a buyer for Macy's in Trenton and taught home economics at the New Jersey School for the Deaf. The wife of a Trenton businessman, she is the mother of a 15-year-old son.

Definition. "Distributive education," she says, "the name is a national problem" covers any job that has to do with either service or the movement of goods. It includes selling over the counter, door-to-door or by telephone, coloring, insurance, beauty and barber shops, dry cleaning and laundry, wholesaling and warehousing of goods, transportation, valuable employees if you find of goods, inventories, who it does decorating and such control, the food industry, the A & P is a national D. E. supporter."

He noted that Rider College has a similar program of marketing and merchandising, with credit for on the job training during the school year. At Drexel Institute in Philadelphia, he said the junior or senior year is a split schedule between jobs and classes.

Students will study at school in the mornings and will work afternoon or evenings. They're going to find problems in their jobs and will work individually with their jobs. Then realize how their jobs relate to the whole operation. Classroom has to do with how to comport ones self, how to handle interviews and meet the public. The students will file a report each week on the basic work done on the job. We'll ask what mistakes they made and if they'd like to discuss the problem with the whole class. Employers will give us reports, too.

"There is dignity in sales work if the seller knows what he is selling. This is very important."

The juniors will be divided into two classes and they will work in-school promotion. They will sell tickets for plays, athletic events, handle the bulletin boards and solicit advertisements for the school paper. They will run the school store, selecting merchandise, arranging display, keep books and a running inventory, advertise the wares and do the selling.

"If, for example," Mrs. Silverstein says, "warming to her favorite subject, 'If we sold 250 activities tickets last year, this year we will have to sell 10% more. That's what this is all about.'"

Traffic Plan Opposed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your August 11th article on plans for public housing of the sized on North Harrison Street states that traffic will be routed through an extension of Spruce Street; there will be no direct vehicular communication between the project and Harrison Street. This intelligence was relayed in a tone of mild jubilation by a writer obviously residing elsewhere in Princeton.

The extra burden of traffic on Linden Lane, Spruce Street, and even Maple Street will constitute a nuisance and hazard in a neighborhood once distinguished by its relative quietude and its large number of young children. As it is we are no longer trusting the pleasant sight of sleds down on Linden Lane during the snowy weather. The Borough gives preference to drivers turning off Nassau Street, many of whom maneuver their vehicles as if they were on a direct line to the Aleen Highway. Yet the children on the street increase according to the dictates of nature and the pedestrian traffic pattern to the John Witherspoon School.

If the added volume of truck and automobile traffic inevitable to the construction and maintenance of a six-story housing project, takes place, Linden Lane will very likely take on the character of the State Street-206 artery. It is useless to say that this is not what the residents of the street bargained for when they settled here. Progress, almost as if by definition, is oblivious to individual comfort. That the safety of school children and infants is another matter, and one that may have some bearing on the actions of the Borough Council if enough people become aware of the problem soon enough.

I hope that readers of this letter living in the neighborhood will join me in a petition to the Borough Council this fall to alter the traffic routing plans for this project.

Protect Residential Values.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Almost everyone living in Princeton seems to want to maintain the unique residential nature of the town. Many people have found Princeton to be one of the few attractive places in the nation.

Many of us commute a considerable distance in order to live here. All around we see what has happened to communities that have grown piecemeal. In the minds of many thoughtful people the word "Progress" in town development has become synonymous with ugliness and opportunism.

Unfortunately, pressure to change the character of this little island is growing every year. Every merchant, every business, every service activity can rightly demonstrate that he needs to expand.

Princeton is one of the few town centers between New York and Philadelphia that is still surrounded by a considerable amount of open space. This is rapidly being developed.

There is no doubt that Princeton could easily become the unrolling focus of shopping and services for the new population that has not yet dispersed alternate community centers. All that is needed is more and wider roads, leading in and out of town and lots and lots of parking areas for the cars. The question is to do the residents really want this?

Bamhart's want to expand, the A&P also. This is sound business; the stores would probably be successful since they are in the center of a rapidly developing suburban area stretching from Belle Mead to Cranbury and from Lawrenceville to Franklin Park.

But, as Mr. Jean Labatut

 warned in a letter to Town Trustees on July 7, 1966, that time has come to decide not only if some of these expansions are needed, but if they are in the best interest of the community. As he so appropriately summarized at that time: "Will Princetonians continue to take care of Princeton."

Living near the Hospital, I have become aware of the very same problem. The proposed expansion of the Hospital to an ultimate capacity of 600 beds, and an ultimate height of 10 floors to serve the needs of parts of Mercer, Middlesex, and Somerset Counties seems to endanger another neighborhood in terms of parking lots, traffic, and loss of residential character. At the 1964 capacity of 235 beds, only 22 out of 10 admissions were from the combined Princeton Township-Borough.

Princeton as a community is a delicate balance between the University, the tax-income-producing research parks, the commuting residents, and the services required by this aggregate whole.

Upsetting the balance by encouraging unnecessary cancellation of shopping activities, by allowing extensive expansion of service groups, by encouraging massive influx of traffic at the expense of residential areas is dangerous, as many refugees from other communities will only testify. This imbalance is basically what has wrecked so many other "nice towns." Unfortunately, this appears to be an irreversible process. Towns have personalities, but once a town becomes a hollow shopping or service center, then the residents seem to lose interest, or leave; and the town usually dies as a spiritual and social entity.

I believe that Princeton residents should not yield to the current pressure. In time, neighboring communities will develop their own centers of services. Already, my healthy trend has been seen in the public schools, with Princeton getting out of the business of providing educational facilities for towns that ultimately can do just as well by providing their own.

Princeton residents should be keenly aware of new projects or expansion plans that can change the nature of the town. A variance that increases the number of people in the shopping center or to Witherspoon Street could affect not only their neighborhoods but all of the people living on any road leading in and out of town.

In order to prevent the town from becoming a high tax, low service and consumer center of the area, the residents of the area, the resi-

How To Survive

Corr. S. Kammeler

Close to 1,700 children will accidentally poison themselves fatally in their own homes this year, one medical authority reports, through too-easy access to dangerous though common household chemical products. So before tragedy can strike your home, take these simple safety precautions. First, don't keep more poisons than you need. Read the labels carefully and don't store toxic materials where you keep food, or in old food containers, such as soda bottles. Avoid keeping detergents and household bleaches in unlocked cabinets where toddlers can reach them. Wash hands and change clothes contaminated with insecticides before handling children. Never give, nor take, unmarked medicines, or those prescribed for someone else. Be cautious, and safe. Our prime aim is to help you live well in every way.

News Of The CHURCHES

CLERGYMAN NAMED

Rev. Carter Center. The Rev. Thomas E. Brown of Trenton was named as the new pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of the North at Carter Center, 40 Witherspoon Street.

The career center was established in November 1963 as a pilot project to provide occupational counseling and consultative services for ministers, directors of social agencies, musicians and other professional church workers located in the synod of New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware. The Rev. Harold Allen has been guiding the project.

The Rev. Mr. Brown, a native of Asheville, N. C., is a cum laude graduate of the University of Southern California with advanced degrees from Princeton Theological Seminary. He has worked on a doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania. He is currently assistant secretary of the Interboard Office of Personnel Services of the General Assembly and was formerly associate pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian Church in Trenton.

According to the Rev. Mr. Brown, the Carter Center is based in Princeton because of the town's central location, reasonable transportation and the pressures of today.

"SPOON RIVER"
At Washington Crossing

America at the turn of the century evoked vividly by the words of Edgar Lee Masters — that's "Spoon River," which will play its second and final weekend this Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Open Air Theatre, Washington Crossing. Starting time is 8:45 p.m.

"Spoon River" tells the life stories of some who lived in Spoon River, but the anthology is more than biography; it is the history and panorama of a growing country, too, full of nostalgia, humor (tragedy and a touch of the eternal).

HOW TO STEAL A MILLION: Audrey Hepburn and Peter O'Toole match lives in a romantic comedy on the flamboyance of the art world now at the Playhouse and the Prince.

News Of The Theatres
which will be on view through Sunday, September 5.

"The Best of Burlesque" will include many famous burlesque routines, like "Flongie Street," "Slowly I Turn" and "The Lady of the Roses," in which 212 roses will be tossed into the audience.

Performances will be given in 8:30 each evening, 6 and 9:45 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 Sunday, with a "milkman's matinee" at 11:30 p.m. Friday, September 2.

Any real-life hard man who buys a ticket will be given a special side seat.

Labor Day Weekend, the Music Circus will hold the Rock 'n' Roll World Championships (September 4 at 4 p.m.) and will present Bill Ochs on Monday, September 5.

Next: Broadway
For "Burlesque" The proferred revival of S. N. Behrman's comedy, "Burlesque," on Broadway this week seems to be drawing New York theatrical personalities to the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope, where Anne Jackson is starring in a revival of the 1930's hit.

That makes an added inducement to visit the Playhouse. You never know who you'll find in the audience.

"Burlesque," with Miss Jackson, will play through Saturday, September 2. The Behrman comedy describes the reactions of a large group of plumed gentlemen when a famous painter decides to write about her life in a "biography" designed for a mass-circulation magazine.

Roland Waters, John Harkins and Stephan Schnabel are three of the S. N. Behrman was last heard from as the author of "But For Whom Charlie," given at Lincoln Center two years ago.

"Lord Penguin," presented in 1962 was another Behrman presentation. He also did "Fanny" with Josh Logan and several Hollywood scripts including "Queen Christina" for Greta Garbo, "The Lady of the Roses," for Ronald Colman and "We and the Colonel" for Danny Kaye.

"After 'Burlesque,' the Playhouse will give "Any Wednesday," in which Don Porter and Marsha Hunt will star. This is the comedy about the millionaire industrialist and his lovely tax-deduction. Mr. Porter held the millionaire on Broadway and will repeat his role at Bucks County.

PLAYHOUSE AND PRINCE
How to steal a million (now playing): Love, mercy and laughter are served up in generous portions in this suave comedy directed by William Wyler. Audrey Hepburn and Peter O'Toole star.

The plot concerns a French politician, played by Hugh Griffith, who makes a living out of art forgery; his daughter, Audrey Hepburn who indulges him because she loves him dearly, and the exhibition of one of his finer phonies, the "Cellini Venus," in a French museum.

That the statue will be examined by experts, O'Toole is hired to steal the statue. The story turns into a hilarious cops.

How Old Are You?

The only adults welcome at Elle this week are mothers with indulgent checkbooks in hand. Everybody else over 22 had better just stay home.

All the suave and sophisticated little dresses you've come to adore at Elle have been shoved into the back room, and the shop has burst into a "flurry" bloom of hot purple and cool Kelly green, mod caps, wicked yellow and size five.

A record player is back in there somewhere, and it is playing Faure's "Requiem." All the clerks are college girls like Mrs. Alonzo, who owns the shop, is quietly at her station in the shade with a lemonade.

We dare you to walk down Chambers Street.

IT'S NEW To Us

POW! WOW! ZOWIE!

Who's For Vinyl? It's quivering, lemon-scented yellow vinyl, mirror bright, with narrow, snaky regimental stripes in a sinister black. The skirt is striped, short and narrow. The jacket is severe and tediously British. A vinyl mod cap matches. The turtle-neck under the jacket is plum.

Pow! Or did we say that? Anyway, the skirt is Elle, the Princeton Boutique, at 2 Chambers Street and the jacket is severe and tediously British. A vinyl mod cap matches. The turtle-neck under the jacket is plum.

That vinyl suit gives you the clue. It's Elle, and we would like to add that it's just about the most expensive thing in the shop, because Elle wants to keep all these young and sassy clothes within those short and narrow budgets.

"J. P.'s only" and Wiggett's are the two lines. For $16, you may have "J. P.'s only" printed corduroy shirt in calico stripes with a round-eyed little white collar and a flat neckline bow.

You've already seen in Elle's window the wool jersey shirt which

BUS STOP: These Danskin tights will stop any bus on the school route. You'll find them at Allen's in such new and delicious flavors as wild plum, Bristol (royal) blue, camel and suede brown in addition to your old favorites. There are matching tops, too, as any Danskin knows.

in navy with short sleeves, crew neckline and one-inch horizontal stripes of orange and raspberry six inches apart all down the front. But did you see the hot orange wool knit, with the teeny-weeny front bows in wool? Or the wool knit with broad orange stripes on each side and broad yellow and pink stripes making the middle section? The back is solid yellow, and the neck is a soft turn-over, in pleasant change from the usual shift roundly.

The plum wool has a very, very low waist, a pleated skirt and two buttons. The low waist hangs again from a ticking knit top in black and white. The little skirt — the waist is so low it's got to be a little skirt — is bright red.

How're your hips? The "I'm Hip" skirt, roughly the size of a tam o' shanter, comes in good true Scotch tartans (or so it seemed to us), with bright yellows, deep olives, russets and blacks predominating. You swing these little skirts from your hips and the belt is contoured to help. They come in straight or pleated fashions, and cost about $12.

With anything at Elle, or elsewhere, you wear a richboy

GARDEN

A Fine Madness (now playing) this free-wheeling farce will delight adults who have a secret wish to take a poke at such institutions as psychiatry, nursery, mother, big business and the joys of all-merry.

Sean Connery is excellent as the comely, brawny and irresistible roper whose struggles to live as an artist and man lead him into bizarre situations. Joanne Woodward as the dizzy waitress he marries is a stand-out in an altogether excellent cast.

Connery, like Alec Guinness' performance in "The Horse's Mouth," adopts the pose of the artist on the fringes of society who nevertheless is immersed in his madness. Bent on pursuit of his art, he is pursued by glib collectors and nosy professional inquisitors, and rich ladies. He suffers a creative block and winds up in hospital.

Colin Dewhurst is the hostile psychiatrist who reaches the poet in an elemental way. Sean Connery's wit in the hospital's rippled bath. Patrick O'Neal and Gloria Reil decide he needs brain surgery.

Connery emerges as a prime-time snail running amuck in city life. Adult audiences may enjoy his trials; some sequences are questionable for the younger set.

JAZZ AND BALLET

For Sundance Finale Jazz and ballet are scheduled for the final two performances of the summer season at the Sundance Festival Theatre near Upper Black Eddy, Bucks County, Pa.
This Friday, Cecil Taylor and his sextet will perform in their first appearance. Mr. Taylor, a noted jazz pianist who has studied at the Paris Conservatory, has played in groups with Miles Davis, Ornette Coleman and others.

On Saturday at 9 the Manhattan Festival Ballet will appear as the final event of the 10-week season. The company is composed of young classical dancers under the direction of Ron Sequoia, a soloist of the Metropolitan Opera Ballet. Major work on the production will be "The Phantom of the Opera," a new narrative ballet choreographed by James Frawley with a score by John Hermet McDowell.

Tickets to Sundance performances are $2.50 (students) $1.50. Reservations may be made by calling 213-847-5303.

THE WORLD'S STAGE

For Teacher-Actor Dr. Emory Battis, a professor of history at Douglass College and his familiar name to McCarter Theatre-goers, is in Ohio this summer to continue his acting ambitions.

While his students at Douglass, the women's unit of Rutgers were studying for their final exams, Dr. Battis was also studying — learning lines of one of the most demanding roles in the theatre, Shakespeare's "King Lear." He will portray Lear this summer in the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival in Lakewood, O., just outside Cleveland.

In addition to his part as Lear, he will also play Cornelia in Shakespeare's "Winter's Tale" and the Rev. Charles in Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." This will be the fifth consecutive summer that Dr. Battis has been the leading character at the Great Lakes Festival. During this period he has played 22 different roles.

Dr. Battis is a veteran of McCarter performances and has received praise for his part in several plays during the past season. His roles include Sir Anthony Absolute in Sheridan's "The Rivals," Andrew Underhast in Shaw's "Major Barbara," Candida's father in Shaw's "Candida" and Auditus in Shakespeare's "Coriolanus."

For his last play, "The Statue in Shaw's "Don Juan in Hell" scene from "Man and Superman" at McCarter.

The four-inch numeral at the collarbone. Comes in plum with Kelly they can see you all the way from the top of the stadium in number 32 and with orange in number 74 and navy with orange in number 68.
Send me in, coach!

Another varsity version has that low waist, pleated skirt, V neckline and banded sleeves. Plum and Kelly again, or gold and red. These are $22.88. If you have a football scholarship, need a jumper? Elle is showing you how to wear it in operation. A black and white herringbone varsity. Very versatile. Until you notice that the armholes are cut all the way to the waist and the front all the way to the low belt. YOU WEAR A SWEATER UNDER THIS ONE. Gold, Elle suggests.

We don't want mums to think everything is frivolity at Elle, so we show her the collection of sports suits modeled on the British make. These are wool suits, classic enough to wear almost anywhere, but fashionable right down to the last button.

The Norfolk jacket with its belt, the John's blazer with its curved front and patch pockets, the Oxford with its button-down shirt modeled on the British make. These are wool suits, classic enough to wear almost anywhere, but fashionable right down to the last button.

Any day now, Elle expects shift skirts in tailored button-down skirt style, wide waist, wrist sleeves and the widest colored stripes you ever blinked at. With a little bit of luck, they may be in by the time you read this.

LIGHTS OUT

Colors. In. At Edith's, they don't observe a dormitory "lights out." They turn on all the lights in the house to show you quilted robes in red, red, or orange. Blue. All for girls packing to leave. A short robe, quilted cotton, is navy with gold double-breasted buttons and a bright red lining. It also comes in lacquer red with navy. This one is for sassy sophomores who know it all.

Demure freshmen who wish they did, will choose the dark calico in yellow-black, rust-orange, black with lace-edged collar and sleeves. A gown matches, in girly style, and there are even matching slippers.

Overclassmen who are world-weary and sophisticated, will squeal over the short princess fitted robe in bright powder blue tricot lined with chertreuse. A very short gown in nylon tricot is almost Grecian in simplicity, fashioned with a high yoke of chertreuse, a pleated insert of chertreuse, and a high collar in blue flowing silk. The neckline is boat, fore and aft. (Watch out: mother will grab this one.)

Girls in colleges with cold dormitories will want Edith's.

What Does Merger Mean for My Child

1. Your child will go to the school he normally would have attended regardless of merger. Exception: about 20 kindergarteners in the west-end of the Borough have been asked to attend Johnson Park. Officials will honor any requests for school transfer on a space-available basis.
2. Only Borough residents may attend four-year-old kindergarten, and on a space-available basis: first come, first served.
3. John Witherspoon School is full. There will be more than 900 youngsters there, maximum 30 to a class. If a class is overfilled, a child will be assigned to a school close to his home. This means that newcomers to the Borough will probably be assigned to a school in the Township.
4. Assignment of classroom teachers in all schools remains unchanged from June 30 to 1968. New teachers have been hired, filling gaps caused by the departure of 34 Township and 34 Borough teachers. It just happens to come out even! The system still needs half a dozen teachers before September 7.
5. The curriculum throughout will be basically the same. The major project for the year will be the review and unification of the curriculum, and Mrs. Dorothea Lummis will devote almost full time to the elementary curriculum during the year.
6. Although teachers have not been shifted, the Special Services staff will serve "homogenized" and will serve throughout the entire system, (psychologists, reading specialists, social workers).
7. All school board officers have moved out of the high school and are now in the Stoty Brook Administration Building on Stockton Street (921-6292).

floor-length quilted gingham a pink and white with moss velvet ribbon at the high empire waist, the interesting side closing and the white eyelet edge. Comes also in blue with lemon velvet trim. Great big black and white gingham checks make a simple robe with unadorned neckline, high waist and red velvet bow.

You can wear anywhere Edith's bonded boucle knit short robe with its front zipper cinched, but not in a fly! reading in a soft turn-over for the Bright Get the set that's all together and ready to go. It's a combination of hot tomato red and hot orange, sometimes mixed into a calico, sometimes brazenly separate, as in the Loretta red, there's a short nightgown with long sleeves, a half slip, pettinants and a bikini, besides that bra. It's called "Bad Guys." Edith sweats it!

The triot mini-slip is white with the most minute confetti dots of green, raspberry and royal. There's a matching bikini. A separate pair of pettinants, in powder blue, has been cut up high at the thighs to accommodate short night skirts. Your entire college wardrobe is encompassed in Edith's nylon stretch navy-red horizontal stripes combination. Start with pettinants. Go on to the tank suit, all-in-one with a deep U neck, built-up shoulder and pettinants, for the world like an old-fashioned lacchini suit. Continue with a V-neck vest which you wear upside. Yes — on the outside! Tulle, please!

WRINKLE! WHAT'S THAT?

Stay Press to Stay. Allen's is so full of knife pleats these days it's just about the sharpest shop in town. Stay Press seems to be here to stay. It does not, however, have to be knife edge. Allen's is showing, for example, Cinderella's "Stop the Press!" a blue cotton jumper with a soft inverted pleat all the way down the front. You never need to iron it. But it stays soft. The jumper has a pair of square pockets set on their points.

Permanently pressed long-sleeved blouses in endearing little floral prints, will be nibbled up by every mother in town.

A corduroy jumper in camel color has a deep U cut and three shiny blue knit buttons. A washable wool jumper in white striped shirt underneath with turtle neck and long sleeves.

Lots of knits for the young ladies this year. Allen's suggests the bonded orlon jumper in a boucle-like knit, navy with bands of raspberry and purple across the yoke. The shirt is white with a little turn-over turtle neck and long sleeves. Other knits are very sporty, combining red white and navy.

Got A Green Beret?

Special forces men, if they happen to wear sizes four through seven, may be completely outfitted for their arduous and important assignments at Allen's. Most above size seven will have to settle for something custom-made.

The Special Forces uniform is heavy chine with flawlessly tailored slacks and a little shirt with Major General's stars. The "Special Forces" designation in print big enough for even a first-grader, to read, and appropriate campaign ribbons (We didn't see a Good Conduct medal).

Green Berets may be had on order, according to the quartermaster at Allen's.

stripes in various ways and designs.

The poorboy knit dress has long sleeves, turtle neck and comes in burgundy or blue. Girls' sizes in everything are under 12.

Boys at Allen's have never had so dashing. Here's a western poncho straight out of "Bonanza" in brocade or loden color suede with leather thong (really leather!) fastening the upper throat and a zipper up the side to hold it in.

For outdoor wear, in a Texas corner, possibly, Allen's has a cotton undergarment lined in loden or brass. It comes just below the waist for ease in the saddle.

If he's at this winter, a lined wool cloth pea jacket, knitted wool neck, deer, knitted wool can wear these, too, but don't say to cut him.

Sheep lining appears again inside a dark rich brown three-quarter hip jacket with single-breasted coat. "Lord of the Honor," it's called.

The Chief Petty Officer's shirt is navy or burgundy in brass buttoned, with white and gold piping, with split and polish. All boys sizes, are through 20.

Boys' shirts are just as permanently pressed as the girls' blouses. Those velours pull-overs in rich blues, burgundies and lodens are just as big this year for both boys and girls.

But strictly for the boys is Allen's cotton flannel tie-up pajamas with white rib neckline and long sleeves. Babarobe matches. The colors are good — brown and good black, black, A terry bathrobe, however, is very subtle with two shades of orange-yellow, black and white.

Allen's has "stuffed tigers," too.

The library is planned with a variety of spaces and levels for group study and individuality.

Classrooms. New concepts of form and function have been introduced into the individual classroom buildings. As one enters, there is no long cell block type of corridor with regimented doors on either side. Instead, there is a large, covered two-story court-like space upon which classrooms open.

This space, while taking the place of traditional noisy corridor, serves the purpose of visually unifying all teaching areas and both floors. It provides activity and exhibit space; it is a flexible area for teacher-student seminars and counseling as well as a paraprofessional center for programmed learning or team teaching curricula.

A truly advanced innovation in the control of natural lighting has been developed in the window design. The windows consist of double panes with a 3/4" space between, in which a narrow sun-control louvre system is placed. This window design reduces heat transmission to a minimum, prevents dust infiltration and reduces outside noise interference. The control device cannot be tampered with by students. By a simple adjustment, the room can be darkened for audio visual instruction.

All partitions are non-load bearing and can be rearranged, accommodating complete functional flexibility for now or in the future.

The Practicities. The entire school is built of fire-proof products for fire safety and low insurance rates. Natural hardwoods and brick are used to reduce maintenance costs. Floors in the teaching areas, library and circulation areas are covered with fire-resistant carpeting to reduce noise at the sound level. Tests and experience have shown, to reduce floor maintenance costs. The kinder-

A Few Things To Do

Acting School Superintendent John McKenna reports the new school to be ready for the onslaught of students this fall, with only a few exceptions.

The biggest headache is that the library furniture will arrive in the middle of December, perhaps later. Programmed equipment, especially designed for the kindergarten and primary grades has also been delayed.

Landscapers are seeding the grounds now, which raises a question as to when the youngsters will be able to use all of the playing fields.

Minor matters include no master television set for the circuit that is installed in the school. And there's no air conditioning, although the conduits are ready and waiting.

A MAN FOR ALL AGES: John Witherspoon, minister, writer and revolutionary, posed for two portraits by Charles W. Peale. The one above hangs in Independence Hall and is believed to have been painted after the Nassau Hall version. Princeton University also owns a marble bust of Witherspoon. His statue is on the left at the entrance to Free Administration Building, facing Cannon Green. He is seen depicted in a stained glass window at the chapel. There is also a Charles Peale copy of a Peale portrait in Dean Browne's home, found by Professor Henry L. Savage in the American Embassy in Paris.

garage unit floors are heated. The program for the school envisioned a "total architecture" recognized not only the importance of efficient technology alone, but equally, the spiritual values and aspirations of man. A great challenge and true measure of the values of a community.

JOHN WITHERSPOON
Clergyman and Rebel. Very little has been published about one of the most powerful figures of the American revolution. Dr. John Witherspoon. He shares with the complex, Joseph Reed, president of the Continental Congress, a shadowy position on the battlefield. He was behind such figures as Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Monroe and Franklin.

Dr. Witherspoon was a man of paradox. He was 45 when he came to the colonies in 1768, at the invitation of the trustees of the College of New Jersey (now Princeton University), leaving behind him 20 years of militant leadership of Scottish Presbyterian conservatives. Six years later, he was on the side of rebellion, publishing in 1774 "Considerations on the Nature and Extent of the Legislative Authority of the British Parliament."

He disappointed of ministers who took part in politics, yet he was the New Jersey delegate to the Continental Congress from 1776 to 1782, with brief intermissions.

A clergyman, serving as sixth president of a college mainly designed to educate men for the ministry, he introduced the study of philosophy, French, history and oratory to Princeton students. It was his conviction that an education should be of public usefulness. To aid the teaching of science, he bought the first Hittite's rebrated oratory, installed in Nassau Hall in 1771.

Magnetic Personality. Dr. Witherspoon was a blue-eyed, broad-chested man with a magnetic personality. He was known in the colonies long before his arrival through the stream of satires and invectives against church hierarchy that issued from his pen. He soon reached an unrivaled place in American church circles by playing a key role in resolving the factional schism within the Presbyterian church.

He preached in the major churches from New England to Georgia, raised money for the college at the same time. In 1789, he was moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

A signer of the Declaration of Independence, Dr. Witherspoon was an influential member of the Board of War and the Committee of Secret Correspondence. He fought against the flood of paper money which threatened the new states with bankruptcy. His strong Scots accent was constantly heard in the debates on the Articles of Confederation.

He assisted in the organization of the government's executive department and helped in the formation of diplomatic alliances. A member of more than 100 committees over the years, his heavy scout figure was a familiar sight to farmers along the road between Princeton and Philadelphia.

Timely Saracem. It was Dr. Witherspoon whose sarcasm quelled royalist governor William Franklin when he was sent with several others to arrest him. Franklin retorted to recognize their authority and called them uncouth yokels. Witherspoon, bearing in mind Franklin's illegitimate birth, replied "That is true. We do not have the manners of high birth."

In 1781, when 2,000 unpaid and mutinous soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line reached Princeton, with the aid of Anthony Wayne as their cup-tive, it was Dr. Witherspoon and Joseph Reed who succeeded in arranging matters.

He loomed large within the village of Princeton. He was sponsor of First Presbyterian Church's first sanctuary. He helped found a primary school.

Loren Wesley Johnson

NEW MAN, NEW SCHOOL
Impressed. "I was impressed with this school facility," said Wesley Johnson this week. He is the new principal of the new John Witherspoon School and it took a year's search and a trip to California to find a man of his caliber to assume the new job.

On the official records, his name is Loren Wesley Johnson but he is known as "Wes." With his wife and daughters, ages 9 and 7, he arrived in Camden on page 20.

—Fact remembered by the Borough's Board of Education. Out on Cherry Hill Road is "Tusculum," the farmhouse he built in 1773.

In December 1776, the house was the headquarters of the 40th British Regiment. A protégé of his, James Tod, was Princeton's first printer, with a shop in "Queenston" (the Harrison Street vicinity). He was a one-time owner of "Castle Howard" on the Princeton-Kingston Road, the building being left in his hands by the widow of Captain Howard to avoid confiscation.

A vital figure in the shaping of a new country, friend and host of the leading men of the nation, president of Princeton for 26 years, his last years were sad and difficult. The college was devastated by the revolution, funds were low, his own purse depleted. His wife died. Two years later, at age 68 he brought home a 26-year-old nurse. He was blind during the last two years of his life. He died in 1794 at Tusculum. His grave is in Princeton Cemetery.

Topics Of The Town

Princeton from San Francisco on August 11.

He is on the brink of being Doctor Johnson. All the technical requirements for his doctorate have been completed and the next move will be made by Stanford University. Doctor Johnson held an administrative internship in the Reed Union School District, Belvedere-Thurston, California, as part of his doctoral program. He also has considerable experience dating from his years as principal of elementary schools in California and Idaho.

For his doctoral dissertation, he devised an experiment to find out whether a first-grade environment could be so manipulated that first-grade boys would equal first-grade girls in reading level. Girls are usually ahead in this early reading period.

In his experiment, he grouped boys alone without girls, and also used programmed reading techniques. Measuring with the most sophisticated statistical tools, he found that the control group — boys and girls mixed — was not significantly different from the boys-alone group and that the programmed readers seemed to do quite as well as the non-programmed ones.

Mr. Johnson's research project of the moment is centered around housing. "We are still exploring the housing situation," he says. Returning to the new school, Mr. Johnson observed that the staff seemed to be excited, and eagerly looking forward to new challenges. "I think we could say that," he remarked, "there are unlimited horizons."

SCHOOL PLANS MADE

Parents of students not previously registered should bring birth certificates, previous school records and certificates of immunization against small pox, diphtheria and polio. Parents wishing to contact the school before the date of registration may call 924-1400 between 9 and noon, or the principal, at 799-1490.

School buses will start to pick up high school students at 7:15, proceed to Princeton High School and at 8 start to pick up the elementary school pupils. Kindergarten bus service will start at 11:35 a.m. Elementary school students will start for home at 3 and high school students at 3:40. The Princeton School faculty will meet at 9 a.m. on Friday, September 2. New staff members include Conrad Goldberg, school psychologist, and Mrs. Stephen Kyriakos, seventh grade teacher. Mrs. Marion Dean will also be working in the school, teaching music for two days per week.

TURN ON THE LIGHTS

Use Schools at Night. "I believe school should be a community center — used by the people of a community after the kids have gone home," commented Superintendent John J. McKenna this week. "A limited school policy, you might call it."

The question has added point in Princeton this year because a private school — Princeton Day School — reportedly had to cancel its arrangements that The Great Road Players could use its auditorium, thereby bringing the whole question of school building use into the public light.

Zoning, which killed off the Players' agreement with the Day Schools, would not be a factor with a public school, McKenna states. A public school board is independent of local government and can do as it wishes with its school buildings.

John Witherspoon School has an excellent auditorium and sophisticated stage equipment. Would it ever become a home for a group like the Great Road Players or Princeton Community Players, now looking for a home?

"I'm not sure that would work out," Dr. McKenna warned. "I wouldn't want to see any school building tied down to a single organization. A theatrical group would need rehearsal nights and a place to store equipment, in addition to the regular nights of performance. What I'd like to see is school buildings — auditoriums, cafeterias, gymnasiums — used by as many different groups as possible."

Besides John Witherspoon, there are auditoriums in the high school, Community Park and Valley Road which could be used by characters in search of an audience.

Dr. McKenna has suggested a fee of $7.50 an hour to non-profit organizations, probably a standard fee for everyone although there seems to be some possibility of a fee scale. The $7.50 is based on the cost of a man on duty, heat and light.

"We don't want to make a profit, but we do want to break even," the superintendent emphasized. "There's no point in subsidizing this through the school budget."

Gymnasiums are the rooms most likely to be lighted at night. Folk dance groups and basketball players have been using gym in Community Park for some time. Programs sponsored by the Joint Recreation Board are not charged a rental fee. To charge the Board a fee, the Township School Board reasoned some time ago, would be to transfer money from one Princeton pocket to another.

The Municipal School Board, occupied with more immediate matters, has not made a definitive policy on the use of schools by the community, but may do so later in the year.

BOYCHOIR TELLS PLANS

For 27th Year, The Columbus Boychoir School of Princeton will begin its 27th year on Sunday, September 11, with a capacity enrollment expected. Headmaster Lauren D. Rhine reports that several new members of the faculty will be presented at the Sunday meeting, scheduled to start at 7.

New faculty members include Mrs. Helen Martin of Belle Mead, instructor in the Lower School; Kennedy O'Brien of Edison, instructor in the Lower School; John Mantano of Little Falls, N. J., director of student activities; and Mrs. Helen Wilson of Rochester, N. Y., nurse and housemother.

This year the Boychoir will be represented by Columbia Artists Management, Inc. of New York City. A new record will be produced in the fall and in early 1967 the Boychoir will tour Canada, the mid-west and southwestern states. On December 21 and 22 the annual Christmas concert, featuring "Anahel and the Night Visitors" this year, will be presented at McCarter Theatre.

GIVES NOD TO MULTIPLE HOUSING: Multiple housing for Princeton? Michael O'Kane implies it's inevitable. "It's going to have to be done sooner or later," Others argue that Princeton should fight to retain its special character. (Staff Photo)

...son's enough room around because this town needs it desperately. But I don't appreciate, if they do anything, I would recommend they stay with the Colonial style architecture and not try anything modern. I'm from Detroit and it's a pleasant change to see the difference in architecture. I don't think we have enough of this in our places.

Mrs. Jacqueline Brown, Lawrenceville, editorial assistant: I'm against it. I think Princeton should retain its character. There are too few towns like Princeton left.

Mrs. Ellen M. Prater, Lawrenceville, waitress: Princeton's primary need is low-cost multiple housing. They need low-cost multiple housing here very badly. I'd be in favor of it by all means.

David Harris, graduate student, politics: I'd be opposed to it. You would lose the color and the atmosphere that Princeton has gained so far.

Mrs. David Carroll, Griggs town, employee: Princeton Gamma Tech Inc., Route 206. I think it's a very good thing.

...prove of higher-rise, obnoxious buildings. I think the atmosphere of Princeton should be preserved. You can have both! This town desperately needs housing for students and for other people as well. I think multiple housing would be an asset to the town because many of your upper class people move out for lack of proper housing. Look at the research industry here! Where are you going to put them all? Have you ever gone apartment hunting in Princeton? Well, I have and what you find mainly is a lot of old planning. I'd like to see some more low-cost housing. I feel that low-cost housing is going to be a big thing for Princeton. The best number to call for classified advertising is 924-2200.

Question of the Week

Question: Would you favor or oppose the amending of Princeton's zoning laws to allow the construction of multiple housing?

Where asked: Palmer Square.

Michael O'Kane, Princeton, Hightown Road: I'd be in favor of it. The town is growing at a tremendous pace. It's going to have to be done sooner or later. I might as well start planning for it at the earliest possible date. In time, Princeton will probably reach the size of Trenton. The Township has plenty of room; the Borough has no place to go but up.

Mrs. Frank Cuomo, 419 Wood & Tower, 90 Nassau Street: I'd like to see Princeton stay residential. That's why I stayed here. I'd be opposed.

Anthony Chieffalo, Trenton, gardener for Westcott Road residence: I don't see why not. We need a lot of housing around here. People are going to live in here because they can't find a place here.

Mrs. Margaret Mossman, 17 Greenville Avenue, student at NYU: I feel it would ruin the charm of Princeton, which has restricted itself to the type of housing it now has.

W. T. Yang, Graduate School, mathematics: Princeton is a very beautiful and nice place; it shouldn't be allowed to become crowded and

Mrs. John L. Hady, 78 Dempsey Avenue, teacher: Generally, I'd be in favor of multiple housing. I don't like to see zoning obstruct the building of houses people need.

Miss Beverly Durling, Belle Mead, general ledger bookkeeper for Princeton Bank and Trust: I don't approve of it at all, especially not for Princeton. Princeton has always been sort of an elite section, at least in my opinion. I just don't think multiple housing would fit in with the scheme of things at all.

K. J. Clinton, superintendent of buildings and grounds for the Hun School: I'd be in favor. I feel it would take care of the older people and those who don't have big incomes. A housing development could go along with their needs. I'd be more in favor of housing for the elderly than I would be for multiple housing for everyone. To be truthful, there are thousands of acres not too far from Princeton that could be used for multiple housing. When you start building a lot of things that don't blend in with the architecture of Princeton, then you're hurting the town too.

Miss Linda Dorman, 6 Park Place, graduate student, musical theory: Certainly, they need this. I'm going to be a graduate student, so I've been looking for a place to live. What they have is an assortment of rooming houses for men. There's very, very little for women on the edge of the campus. I'd be in favor of it, very definitely.

Ron Niccitt, Detroit, manager for I.B.M.: I think multiple housing would be fine with the size of the city you have. It seems as if there

Topics Of The Town

"I think," said a participant later, "that the play didn't last long enough." There should have been more songs." Mrs.
Gilbert author of "Plays that Sing" agrees and hopes the children will write their own play next year.

"Whether they can sing or not is no criteria of whether they can be in plays. I think they should all have the experience of singing." Every member of the lower school sang in the Christmas pageant, which Mrs. Gilbert records as the high point of the year.

"Basically, I try to give them enough variety so that they will know that not every song is sung the same way. Many children sing fortissimo on every song. It is a good thing for them to know how ballads, such as "Down in the Valley," came to be.
But I'm all for having them cut loose. I know how they love to sing "The Hurricane" or "The Week of the Old 97."

The daughter and wife of ministers, and the mother of two daughters, Allison 9 and Gay 3, Mrs. Gilbert finds the crowds teaching unending.
"In second grade this year, we did a lot of cowboy songs."

The first time, we did "O
Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," there were a lot of little wet eyes. They said, "It is so sad," but one boy spoke up and said, "but it is so beautiful." It touched me to hear up this concept of beauty to them as such as early age.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Plaques Name Campus Trees. A new look has been spotted — tree-trunks on a Princeton University's central green. The trunks display small plaques which make even the casual visitor an expert on woodlore simply by reading
the identifying markers.

The plaques, carrying both the English and Latin name of at least one tree of each species on the campus, number 178 and identify the 140
species of 1917 trees.
Princeton's 132 acres of central campus. The labels are
woodlore simply by reading
but one result of a survey carried out for the University's department of grounds and buildings by a New York landscaping firm.

The survey also showed that a number of Princeton trees are in a state of "tettering old grace" or are suffering from disease. In anticipation of the loss of elms, oaks and maples, the University has announced plans to add at least 200 new trees to the campus by 1970.
Sixty-seven were planted in the first months of 1966.

The American elm is the most common tree on campus, followed by the sugar maple,
the Canadian hemlock and the flowering dogwood. Other common varieties include white pine, sycamore, magnolia, white ash, English elm, red oak and tulip.

Among the most unusual specimens are a metasequoia glyptostrobus, or dawn redwood, and a cedar of Lebanon, both found in the gardens of Prospect which surrounds Princeton President Robert F. Goheen's home. The dawn redwood, a species once believed to be extinct, was grown from seed brought back from China, where it was rediscovered in 1942. The tree, now 19 years old, stands 50 feet tall.

The cedar of Lebanon, one of the finest examples of its kind in the country, stands west of the president's house.
Its twisted trunk and wide-reaching branches give it dignity and character befitting its 130 years.

The Dutch elm disease has claimed many of the University's elms, but one, an English elm over 100 years old, stands untouched by disease between the Firestone Library and Nassau Street. Other less fortunate elms along McCosh Walk are expected to be gradually replaced by American beech.
One result of the work of identifying the trees on campus became apparent when a faculty member phoned to congratulate the department of grounds and buildings on the new identifying plaques. He said that thanks to one of them on an 80-foot tree near his office, he could finally tell his six-year old son that the tree with the "funny long seed buds" was a taxodium biglandi- des, no mean feat for a city-bred professor whose previous knowledge of trees was limited to the species that grow in Brooklyn.

SCHOOLS TO REOPEN

In Montgomery, Classes will begin on schedule September 1 in Montgomery Township despite construction work still going on at the new upper grade Orchard Road School.
Instead of postponing the start of school and continuing classes into next summer, Montgomery will use Blawenburg, Harrington and Skillman schools. All three were slated for closing this year.

The temporary redistribution of pupils will be as follows:
kindergarten through third grade and sixth through eighth grade at Burnt Hill Road; fourth grade, one fifth grade class and the educable class at Harrington; remaining fifth graders at Blawenburg and Skillman schools.

All elementary pupils will be transported to the Burnt Hill Road School and those assigned to the outlying schools will be transported from Burnt Hill by shuttle buses. Bus service will be provided by Kenneth Cover and Daniel and George Trask.

The school board has announced that hot lunches will be provided in the Burnt Hill Road and the Harrington Schools. Students assigned to the Blawenburg and Skillman Schools are expected to take bag lunches. Milk and ice cream will be available in all schools.

When the Orchard Road School opens in October, it will grades.

Professional football's fifth appearance on the Princeton stage will take place Saturday afternoon in Palmer Stadium, with the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles continuing a series that was begun here in 1962. The kickoff for the contest, held annually under sponsorship of the New Jersey Jaycees for charitable purposes, is set for 2 p.m.

In contrast to other years — the first NFL exhibition here was a rock-bottom sellout and the other three have drawn upwards of 40,000 — indications are that Palmer Stadium will be well short of capacity this time. Some 10,000 tickets will be on sale Saturday and only an unseasonal return to clear, cool weather is likely provide brisk business at the ticket booths.

A variety of factors is contributing to the problem of continuing to fill Palmer Stadium every August for this occasion. Working against spectator interest are the weather, which has been hot and humid for virtually all these pre-season affairs; the calibre of play in many of them — first the Eagles and then last year, the Giants — have turned in some particularly sloppy exhibitions; and finally the insatiable electronic eye, television.

More and more pro football games can be viewed in the living room, from early August until mid-January. Two of the Giants' 1966 contests — against Pittsburgh and Atlanta — have been televised and CBS has announced that this Saturday's encounter in Palmer Stadium will be shown in color at 10 o'clock that night.

Giants Slightly Favored. Off a slowly-developing but progressively-better offense, and a stingy defense that has their backers talking about the glory years earlier in the decade, the Giants will come into Palmer Stadium a slim choice to win. They took the first three games in Princeton from the Eagles but were walloped last August, 34 to 14.

That, however, was prior to the trade that brought quarterback Earl Morrall from Detroit to New York. The passing skill he injected, blended with the running game generated by young Giant backs known as "The Baby Bulls," rejuvenated Coach Aile Sherman's operatives to the extent that they rose from a last-place finish in 1964 to a tie for second in the NFL's Eastern Division. In the process, they atoned for the loss to the Eagles here by beating them twice in regular season action.

Ivy Players Return. Two Ivy League alumni, familiar to Palmer Stadium fans, will play key roles for the Giants. In the absence of the injured Tucker Frederickson, the fullback who won "rookie of the year honors" last season, Yale's Chuck Mercein has earned a role in the starting backfield. His 1966 play has been impressive.

Doing the placekicking for the New Yorkers will be Pete Gogolak of Cornell, the American Football League refugee whose decision to play out his option with Buffalo and then switch to the Giants has been credited with precipitating the forthcoming merger of the two top professional leagues. He has already booted field goals against the Steelers and the Detroit Lions — last season, a variety of Giant specialists made only four of 26 such attempts. Gary Wood, another Cornell alumnus, holds the ball for Gogolak and may see action as Morrall's understudy.

Giant fans, who appear to outnumber Philadelphia Eagles backers in the Princeton area by a wide margin, will pay particular attention to the work of two rookie offensive tackles, Francis Peay and Don Davis had their hands more than full on pass blocking assignments against the Lions last week, and at one time they were withdrawn from the contest for sideline coaching. Their second-half performances improved, however, and Morrall was credited at the end of the game with 14 for 20, one of them a touchdown toss to Steve Thurlow.

Three of Morrall's favorite targets, Del Shofner, Aaron Thomas and Joe Morrison, all will see steady action. Defensively, the battle between the veteran Dick Lynch and Clarence Childs for a starting berth will continue. The veteran Jimmy Patton is set again on this platoon, to which Henry Carr, Carl Lockhart and rookie Willie Williams contribute unusual speed.

Eagles Have Won Two. Victories over Atlanta and the Chicago Bears — the latter a surprising 40-21 rout — have been recorded by the Eagles, who have also been beaten by the Baltimore Colts. They have a number of key players on the injury list, reporting among them tight end Pete Retzlaff, split end Ray Poage and flanker Glenn Glass as doubtful starters.

It will be interesting to see which of three quarterbacks Coach Joe Kuharich employs Norm Snead, unimpressive to date but nominally the Philadelphia's no. 1 operator in the position, is generally slow rounding into form. King Hill, who sat on the bench throughout the game here last August was responsible for the decisive victory over the Bears earlier this month. Boston College alumnus Jack Concannon, who one day figures to run the Eagles, was the youngster who took the Giants' porous pass defense apart here a year ago.

The starting running backs are Timmy Brown, invariably a fine performer, and Earl Gros, with Willie Brown, whom the Eagles got as part of the trade with Los Angeles for linebacker Max Baughan, as the flanker back. Veteran defensive backs Ivy Cross and Claude Crabb have been traded, and with Baughan also missing, the Eagles may be somewhat outmatched in this department Saturday and in the weeks ahead.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK — IV

(This is the last in a series of four articles on Princeton's football prospects for 1966.)

Indians Heavily Favored.

For the first time since 1960, when Yale was assembling a team that lived up to its potential by steamrolling nine opponents, there is good reason to believe well before the firing begins that only one member of the Ivy League has a good chance to win the title. Dartmouth is so firmly entrenched as the pre-season favorite that ability on the part of any other team to finish first in 1966 would have to be classed as the biggest upset since the organization became formal just over a decade ago.

While the Indians are not without a few problems here and there — they lost ten starters, including six All-Ivy players from last year's team — the other seven entries have far more rebuilding to do and none appears to have the combination of backfield strength and power up front that Dartmouth can harness. The Green goes into the 1966 season with the longest winning streak in the nation (10) and while no college team in any sport can actually be favored to take them all for a second year in a row, it would not be any great surprise if Dartmouth does so. Its non-league opponents are Massachusetts, best in the Yankee Conference and a tougher opponent than at least half the Ivies, and Holy Cross, which has faded a bit from the years when it was one of New England's top independents.

Either Yale or Princeton could give the 1965 champions the toughest battle for the marbles but off the schedule, the Elis have the better chance. Whereas the Tigers play both Dartmouth and Yale away, the Bulldogs take on both the Indians and the Tigers at home, and the Bowl can be a friendly place to an Eli team that has ability.

No better than 3-6 a year ago, Yale may be able to blend good holdover strength in the line with best of the unbeaten freshmen. It is on the belief that such a team may develop well by November, whereas Princeton's extremely heavy losses may prove largely irreplaceable throughout the year, that the Blue is the choice as 1966 runner-up.

There is little to choose between Harvard and Cornell but despite generally sound material each year, the Crimson never manages to play a whole season of good football and the estimate here is that this may be the time that it falls out of first division. At Ithaca, Jack Musick, late of Dartmouth, begins his first season as head coach but there is good material and the Red figures to finish among the top four.

Of the remaining teams, Penn is much the strongest choice to climb upwards should any of those currently ranked

Princeton	6	1	0	.857
Harvard	3	2	2	.571
Cornell	3	3	1	.500

above the Quakers falter. Brown and Columbia encounter perennial manpower problems — so much so that in the league's first decade, they have produced only one first division finish between them.

Dartmouth Solidly Set. If other teams find the ability to score against Dartmouth — rebuilding the defensive line is about the only major problem confronting Coach Bob Blackman — the Indians will take care of that with an offense that should be nothing short of explosive. All-Ivy halfback Bob O'Brien is the lone loss by graduation in the backfield, which will have triple-threat Mickey Beard at quarter, Paul Klugness and Gene Ryzewicz as the halfbacks and 226-lb. Pete Walton as fullback.

To go with them are 207-lb. Captain Bill Calhoun and 205-lb. Bob MacLeod, a pair of experienced ends whom Blackman says he would not trade for any pair in the country. All-Ivy center Chuck Matuszak will anchor the interior line, which is a shade smaller than standard but long on experience. Defensively, the line must be rebuilt but there is fine holdover material and every member of the defensive backfield will return. Good sophomore strength will provide added depth — in short, the Indians appear likely to lose out this season only if

Dartmouth to Repeat

Will Dartmouth become the first team in Ivy football history to win back-to-back championships? TOWN TOPICS, which a year ago forecast the Indians' ability to take the 1965 title, thinks they will.

Last summer, the estimate here was that Dartmouth would finish first, with Harvard second and Princeton third, followed by Cornell, Yale, Penn, Brown and Columbia. Save for the fact that Princeton was second and Harvard third, this proved to be the actual order of finish.

The 1966 forecast:

1. Dartmouth
2. Yale
3. Princeton
4. Cornell
5. Harvard
6. Penn
7. Brown
8. Columbia

they beat themselves. Blackman is not the kind of coach who will let that happen.

Only twice in the last five years has a Yale football team topped the .500 mark, and not once since they won the Ivy title in 1960 have the Bulldogs finished as high as second in the league standings. Now at last, their fortunes appear to be on the upswing: a good blend of holdover material and unusual sophomore strength could lift them all the way from last season's fifth place finish to the runner-up slot.

Key to the rejuvenation will be sophomore quarterback Brian Dowling, who hit on better than 50% of his passes and threw 11 scoring aeriels last fall. Best of the other yearling backs is Calvin Hill, a 200-pounder who scored five TDs against the Princeton freshmen; best of the linemen.

Cosch Dick Colman's Estimate of Princeton's 1966 Football Season

Dick Colman

"Our football for the past three seasons has been built around several players of exceptional ability and character, and this hard core has spurred us to fine records each year. With graduation this year, we have lost the remainder of that good nucleus and our success this year can be expected to drop off somewhat as a result."

"There are still some capable players on hand and, with normal development, we can expect to field a good, competitive nucleus with the share of games. However, we just can't expect to be the contender we have been recently unless some unforeseen progress in certain areas shows itself."

"I expect that we will be a team which can move the ball and score. Our backfield talent is led by speedy wingback John Rowers, tailbacks Dave Marita and Bob Weber; fullback Bill Berkley and blocking back Chuck Peters. We have no one man at end and our strength there is heartening."

"Up front, the big losses are Russ Matuszewski and Paul Savidge and we'll also miss quarterback Clay Johnson. Key returns are ends Pete Zeitzold and Tom Potter, tackles Bill Glyod, Homer Ashby and Bob Hunsley, guards Le C. Hefner and Lynn Brewbaker and center Carl Hefner."

"In the defensive secondary, we still have Marty Fiedlerberger and Doug James. Overall, we're hoping to be a hard team for anyone to get past but we can't be as optimistic as in the past two seasons due to the 'quality' men we've lost."

A good defensive secondary and strong interior linemen on the offensive platoon will return. New to the squad, Musick will have his problems finding his first division berth but graduation losses were light only 13 lettermen and there is enough good material to give the rhinoceros a fairly good potential."

Unable to impress when it had as good material as any member of the league, Harvard may topple out of first division this fall for the first time since 1958. The Crimson is short a quarterback, lost a majority of the starting members of each platoon and seems unlikely to build an offense that will make it a scoring threat against most of its opponents. Last year, Harvard's high in Ivy action was 21 points against last place Columbia, and it managed only a total of two touchdowns against Cornell, Dartmouth, Penn and Princeton.

Good individual ability exists in Captain Justin Hughes, a defensive end who has twice, one-time Princeton re-ident, and Steve Diamond; and backs Bobby Leo and Tom Choquette. The latter will be joined by Vir Catzo, a fast halfback who last fall became the highest scoring freshman in Harvard football history. Placekicker Maurice Dulles, whose field goals earned 3-3 and 10-10 ties with Cornell and Penn in 1965, will be an asset when the going is even."

The Other Ivies. Not since Columbia earned a third place finish four years ago have the Lions, Penn and Brown won first-division berth among them. Visibly revived under coach Bob Odell, the Quakers are clearly the strongest of the trio and may improve markedly on the sixth place finish generally been assigned to them. In 1965, for example, they defeated Brown and Columbia, tied Harvard, lost to Yale by only two points and to unbeaten Dartmouth by more than five.

Like every team in the league this year save Dartmouth, Penn must develop a capable quarterback; in comparison with most of its opponents, it is hoping that a sophomore in this case, George Burrell, will develop fast enough to bail out questionable holdover candidates. Halfback Rick Owens the Ivies' best pass receiver last season is the principal offensive threat.

Brown lost All-Ivy quarterback Bob Hall among the lettermen who graduated and enough other players from its offensive platoon so that it fears 1965's slow start on the attack all over again. At the end of their first five games last fall, the Bruins had averaged only 21 points. The defense can probably hold weaker members of the league in check, but Dartmouth, Princeton and Cornell averaged 40 points against Brown last year—a gap too big to bridge in a single season.

After a brief flurry at the start of the decade, Columbia has returned to its near-traditional roll of doormat. The Lions were 2-7 overall last year, victories over Yale and Rutgers and could conceivably go 6-0 in 1965. Minus even the topflight quarterback that has lent color to their teams in other years, they will operate with possibly a half dozen players of viable ability and a barrel full of hope.

The Non-League Opponents. For the past four years, Rutgers has come into Palmer Stadium without an expected quarterback, and during the past four years the Scarlet has averaged less than a touchdown per game against the Tigers. Occasionally, a good field general has been developed as the season wears on, but he has invariably proved to be a senior—and the merry-go-round begins anew the next season.

The story appears unchanged in 1966 although Fred Zerkert, who turned in his best game against Army during an otherwise inconsistent season, might fill the bill. Rutgers has good running backs but is soft in the interior line and the whole defensive secondary was cleaned out by graduation. Colgate, which hasn't scored against Princeton since it last won here in 1962, may be a prime source of trouble this fall. The upstate New York team included Army among their victims in a 6-31 season last year and have considerable manpower strength returning, particularly of offense in the backfield and on both sides of the line.

After two seasons during which they won 17 in a row, the Tigers can hardly be expected to match that pace for a third straight year. Dartmouth, particularly as the third opponent in a campaign that will require much rebuilding, appears to be a good deal more than Princeton can handle. Improving Yale, in the Bowl, will be hard to beat; Colgate could win in a non-league encounter; Cornell will be tough to handle in the last game of the season, especially if there has been trouble at New Haven the week before. A first-division berth in Ivy action and something better than 300 overall are goals.

KAZMAIER WINS SPOT
In Football's Hall of Fame. Dick Kazmaier, Princeton's All-American tailback in 1950 and 1951, will be inducted into the National Football Hall of Fame on September 14 in New York City. He will join nine other football standouts of the past in ceremonies at the Racquet Club.

Kazmaier, winner of the Heisman Trophy as the nation's most outstanding back in 1951, holds six of Princeton's career records. These include yards rushing, 1,950; and total offense, 4,354.

Other Princeton career records he holds are pass completions, 172; completion percentage, .595; and touchdown passes, 35.

DAVIDSON NEW FOE
For Tiger Cagers. Davidson College has been added to Princeton University's basketball schedule. R. Kenneth Fairman, director of athletics, has announced. The Tigers will travel to Charlotte, N. C., to meet the Wildcats on December 15.

The game will mark Princeton's fourth court appearance in Charlotte in the past five seasons. Davidson met the Tigers in 1962 and 1963. Last winter, Princeton took first place honors in the Charlotte Holiday Tournament.

A graduate of the Lawrenceville School, where he was a member of the varsity swim team for four years, Petzold qualified for the finals in A. A. U. time trials. He will begin his sophomore year at Bucknell this fall, where he broke the freshman record in the breaststroke last semester.

GOLF MATCH ANNOUNCED

IN ONE SEASON, MORE THAN A MILE: This type of power blocking made it possible for Princeton's 1965 football team to gain well over a mile (1,991 yards) on the ground last year — ability the Tigers must again achieve if they are to make a run for the Ivy title. Here tailback Ron Landeck (49) follows quarterback Bob Bedell (24), guard Lynn Brewbaker (64) and tackle Dick Reinis (76) past heavily outmanned Brown defender. The nine-yard gain took the ball to the Bruins' one, set up fourth TD in Tigers' 45-27 triumph.

G. P. C. C. and his guests are eligible to compete in the 18-hole tournament, which will use medal play with full handicap allowed or Calloway System for those with no established handicap. Tee off time is 9 to 11:30 or after 1. The awards dinner follows at 7.

Deadline for entries is Monday, September 19. All entries must be accompanied by a check or money order to cover the $12.50 fee. Further information may be obtained by calling Ted Reed at 924-1511 or Alan Frank at 924-2424.

SHOPPING CENTER WINS
To Clinch Recreation Crown. Princeton Shopping Center routed the Antler Sportsmen's Club, 10-2, in the final game of the best-of-three playoff to take the Recreation Softball League championship.

Pitcher Jim Brown scattered five hits over the seven innings to hold the Antler Club at bay while his teammates came up with seven runs in the last two innings after holding a slim 3-2 lead through the first five innings. Gil Turner, Dave Britton and Dave Van Ness combined for ten of the winner's 16 hits.

MIDGET FOOTBALL NEARS
Four Teams Planned. The Princeton Midget Football League will offer an expanded program of activities in its second season. In addition to four fully-equipped teams of 25 boys each, a non-contact football school will be conducted for younger boys and those who do not qualify for one of the uniformed teams.

The League this year will be open to all boys who attend school in the Borough or Township. To be eligible, boys must be 9 by September 1 and must not reach 14 by December 1. Registration will be held September 10-17 with the time and place to be announced next week.

Through the efforts of the boys themselves, parents, merchants and the Jaycees, enough money has been raised to purchase 100 sets of uniforms. —Continued on page 52 forms and equipment. League Commissioner Cosmo Iacavazzi and President Sandy Reynolds have announced three of the four teams. They are Nassau-Conover Motor, Princeton University Store and Matthews Construction.

Tryouts for positions on the teams will be conducted among boys 10-13 who weigh not less than 75 and not more than 105. Those who are ineligible because of their weight may continue in the football school. All participants must provide their own gym shoes and mouthpieces. Each player will also pay his share of the insurance coverage, which will be arranged on a group basis.

Head coaches of the teams will include John Budd, Russell Perone and Peter Budd—all returning from last year's staff. John Sapoch and Jack Petrone will direct the football school. It will provide training in football fundamentals and an opportunity to use them in a schedule of "touch" football contests.

To assist in the expanded program this fall, additional volunteers have been added to the league's administrative staff. Ross Worn will be in charge of all scheduling, while Bill Schilling will direct registration. Others and their responsibilities include Ray Richards, equipment; James McNamara, publicity; Frank Tylus, fund raising; and Benjamin Silverman and J. Leonard Moore, consulting physicians.

ACCELERATOR WINS

To Gain Playoff Spot. Fresh from one playoff to decide the championship of the Western Division of the Business Softball League, Accelerator will meet RCA R, Eastern Division winners, in a best-of-three playoff this week to determine the finest team in the league.

Accelerator won its spot in the finals by routing RCA A, 16-6, after dropping a game to the same team by a 10-6 count on the night before. Going into the final round of play last week, Accelerator had a one-game edge on second-place RCA A.

In a head-to-head encounter in the last regulation game of the season, RCA's Wally Reichert slammed two home runs and a double in four trips to the plate and pitched his way to the 10-6 win. The following night, in the playoff to decide the division championship, Reichert went 3 for 3, but it wasn't enough.

Accelerator pounded out 20 hits for 18 runs to turn the game into a rout. After two innings the score was 9-0 and after five it was 14-2. Winning pitcher Jack Bartow was 3 for 4, as teammate Lee Leach supported him with four hits in five trips to the plate and Norm Costello contributed a three-run home run.

The first game of the playoff was scheduled to be held Tuesday at RCA. The second game, set for this Thursday, will be held at Accelerator. On the same two nights, RCA A and Educational Testing will compete in a best-of-three runner-up series.

In Meet Competition. Three different groups represented the River Road swimming and diving team last Saturday in meet competition. One group defeated the Willows swim team of Kendall Park, 141-105, while another took second place in the Raritan Valley Invitational swim meet at the Village Swim Club in New Brunswick. A third group of three boys brought back five gold medals from the New Jersey boys' junior olympics meet at Fayson Lakes.

Chuck Hector of Hamilton Square, a member of the Princeton Y Flying Fish as well as the River Road team, set a new New Jersey junior olympic record for boys' 10-and-under in the 50 meter, breaststroke and took another first place in the 50 meter freestyle for his age group. His breaststroke clocking of 42.5 seconds was a full two seconds faster than the previous record. He also won three firsts in the meet against the Willows Club.

Hector's teammate, Bob Meusel of Plainsboro, also won two first place medals at the junior olympics meet taking the 50-meter freestyle and 100-meter freestyle for boys 13 and 14. Bill Grell of Rocky Hill won the junior olympic 100-meter breaststroke for boys in the same age category.

FALL HUNTING TO OPEN

September 1, New Jersey's fall hunting will begin next Thursday at sunrise as the rail season opens. Daily limits on the crane-like birds are seven on clappers and 15 on sora and other rails and gallinules.

Sportsmen are asked to report any banded clapper rail they shoot. The number on the metal leg bands and the date and place where the bird was bagged should be sent to the Division of Fish and Game, Box 1809, Trenton.

Clapper rail nest on New Jersey coastal marshes, primarily south of Tuckerton. A census of their nests have shown that this year the number of nests has dropped for the third straight year.

Sora rail usually fly in from the north around mid-September. They may be found in the wild rice meadows near Delaware Bay.
